Faria, a manufacturer of automotive instruments and panel instruments for dashboards for three years. After that, he was Manager of the Engineering Prototype Laboratory for Martin Marietta in Baltimore, MD for two years.

Bill then decided to be a Personnel Consultant for Scientific Technologies for two years in Madison, CT and then back to Chief Engineer for Aerocology in Old Saybrook, CT for two years. He officially retired 13 years ago.

Mary retired in 1955 and has been doing an outstanding job as a Domestic Goddess ever since. Her hobbies include reading and painting decorative ceramics. She loves speaking to people from different countries and learning about their interesting backgrounds. Bill enjoys cars, trains and guns.

Bill and Mary met when they were 16 years old and married eight years later. They are very proud parents of three children who have very fascinating careers. Two live in Connecticut and one in North Carolina.
